000 does it for him, or to the jma'th if no one does so.

684 f) Anyone who commits an act of bestiality must pay for the fodder of the assaulted animal for one day; and among the Aith Waryaghar, he must pay for its packsaddle as well as a 50-peseta fine, and he is cursed by the market crier in the market[74].....

2) Among the Aith 'Ammarth:

685 a) A blacksmith of....asked the qadi for a room to live in. It was given him, and in it he raised chickens, which began to eat the qadi's barley. The qadi claimed compensation from him, saying that he had to kill the chickens and leave the house. He refused to do so, 685 and made a reclamation to the shaikh, who said he was in the right. 692 Then a member of the qadi's family poisoned all the chickens, and the blacksmith complained to the mqaddim. The jma'th, as a result, met in the mosque and fined the qadi 18 duros, of which the blacksmith received only two or three.

582 b) In the village of Aith Finathen, clan of Aith r-Hasayin, one 'Amar nd-Hajj Sriman, a rich man, married his daughter to Muhammadi n Si Siddiq nd-Hajj Sriman, a poor man and one of his agnates (i.e. his brother's son), in order to keep him as a servant[75]. The young man 682 [619] eventually killed his uncle. The tribal council was convoked, and its members punished the dead man's sons by imposing a 6000-peseta fine on them; and they in turn killed Muhammadi and paid another fine....During 662 his lifetime, 'Amar nd-Hajj Sriman, as well as his five brothers, had 623 on various occasions paid 400 duros to the jma'th to excuse themselves from participation in tribal wars.

661 c) A poor man made a goatherd of one of his younger in-laws,

661 and made him pasture the few goats he had. The jma'th or its mqaddim needed money, and so one day they called him up and fined him 65 duros, accusing his mother of incest and saying that if he did not pay up, they would tell the rest of the tribe and it would cost him more. The boy ran away, out of shame.

428 d) Muhammad Hmidu n 'Abd Allah of Aith Finathen, on the 429 death of his father, was brought up by his grandmother, and when she 685 died, by his cousins, who periodically fed and clothed him in return for his acting as a goatherd for them. They kept and divided up his inheritance in land from his father, and did not give it back to him, in spite of the constant excitement of the qa'id over the matter[76].

J. Responsibility:

672 Collective responsibility as reflected in the qanuns is an [671] amplification of responsibility to one's kin group and even...to the same social ties as those of other tribes (sic)[77]; this forces one's fellow tribesmen to comply with the duty of rectifying an injury or damage caused by one of their own people. It is an instinctive and necessary means of defense, and is done so that crimes will not go unpunished. This is all a consequence of the rudimentary social organization of the Rifians, of the difficulty of inquiry, of the lack of repressive organs[78] and of impartial and dispassionate individuals, such as judges. When independent states multiply and the extension of each one of them diminishes, such factors as the above make extradition (sic) more difficult and impunity more easy; and, for this reason, a group attribute is the obligation to educate (i.e. enculturate) and answer for its components. Thus, when the group publicly claims that

623 Thus public
182 esteem and the ideas which such deeds provoke in others are regained;
673 they satisfy the mass of the people without having to resort to cru-687 elty, for.....in a truly humane feeling, note c in the text shows that 685 the author of the crime must have been caught in flagrante delicto.
627 Discounting possible vengeance and not very sure of having succeeded in 623 doing so, note e in the text shows the institution of a popular tri-
554 bunal formed by two neutral individuals, two men who neither take part 671 in the agreement nor are members of the jma'th, but the fact that they have prestige in it is a maximum guarantee of the workability of the qanun in question.

623 Furthermore, the jma'th as a social unit is personified not in 621 its mqaddim, in the Arab manner, but, hostile to personal power, in a triumvirate formed by three of the legislators who took part in the meeting and who remain obligated to watch over the fulfillment of the agreement. This executive organ of power is made up of laymen, and it as much as the aforementioned tribunal is the result of popular election.

671 In the few lines which this qanun has, aside from creating a 624 a code, a tribunal and a police force, all of which are, naturally,
182 gratuitous, it creates a rural exchequer, and all this with a good, natural and admirable feeling.

182
671 It restricts, through fear of fines, damages to the small social 626 unit it represents by guaranteeing the safety of property and discard-
681 ing cravings for economic expansion at the expense of member lineages.[35]
613

691 It creates lineage authorities whose jobs are gratuitous, and,
613 always suspicious, it avoids concentration of power in the hands of one
661 person, a fact which permits neither a shade of tyranny by the latter 182 nor a bastardization of his office.

671 of knowing the needs of the moment, not past or future needs which do
554 not mean anything to anybody. They are living laws designed for living 623 people, for those present.

671 Paragraph b shows us how they embellish their law, taking aggra-672 vating and attenuating circumstances into account. Among these are nocturnity and dwellings (where they guard their fig and grain re-[682] serves). Attenuating and, even more, exemption from responsibility, homicide is legitimate if committed in self defense or in defense of one's property.

681 Paragraph c punishes intention, in order to avoid disputes,
554 and makes a small concession to personal power, permitting the shaikh
● 661 to keep for himself this fine destined for the common fund.
671

685 Paragraph d is concerned with injuries to crops by animals,
672 which are herded by children. The punishment is minimal.
671

In paragraph e, the law of the jma'th establishes and regulates 671 the social duty of hospitality, imposing the burden equally on all its 623 members. Guests learn that it is not only the shaikh who pays for 574 their upkeep, but all the members of the jma'th, even the poor ones.

623 Consider also the excessive number of voluntary servitors who 574 dance continued attendance on the guest with towels, basins and soap, and finally the amphitrion hands over to their expectant voracity all the remains of your meal, except for one small dish which, passing through the door, is submerged in the mysterious interior of the dwelling as a reward for the activity of the women or children who prepared it. When you leave, each member of the jma'th retires with whatever he presented for your comfort: pillows, blankets, soap, coffee pot or teapot, towel, glasses, candles, etc.
